Information for Sponsors

The 2020 Water Utility Resilience Forum: Ensuring Resilience for the Next Century is being developed and hosted by the Association of Metropolitan Water Agencies (AMWA) and the National Association of Clean Water Agencies (NACWA) in partnership with the Water Research Foundation (WRF) and Water Information Sharing and Analysis Center (WaterISAC). The organizers are currently scoping facilities in Miami, FL during the first week in December 2020.

Sponsoring the 2020 Water Utility Resilience Forum offers the opportunity to reach senior executives from urban and water and wastewater systems over the course of this two-and-half-day event. The utility executives attending this unique event will engage in a high-level dialogue about resiliency planning, the level of investment needed to ensure utility resiliency and sustainability, and strategies for making these needed investments now and for the future. The organizers are planning for a Forum that focuses primarily on water utility executives, with a limited percentage of attendees from outside utilities, providing sponsors with unique access to these decision makers.

Each sponsorship level has certain benefits, the most important of which is the opportunity to network with utility executives between sessions and during luncheons and receptions.
